Special Themed Issue of

International Journal for 21st Century Education
Co-editors: Irina GOLUBEVA and Marie-France MAILHOS

Nowadays, civic education is gaining a new perspective. In today's world, which is full of conflicts, people should develop a sense of responsibility at local and global level, and become active citizens of their country, continent and the planet as a whole. Still there are plenty of unresolved questions in theory and practice of education.

It is our pleasure to announce the Call for articles for the Special Issue on European Citizenship and Literacy for IJ21CE.

International Journal for 21st Century Education is a biannual journal dedicated to the publication of original studies on Education, Educational Innovation, Research in Education, Second Languages, Multilingualism, Interculturalism, Multiculturalism and other related fields.

The Special Issue will focus on the following topics related to European Citizenship, Migration and Multilingualism:

- Multilingualism in various contexts (school, workplace, public service, etc.);
- Minority languages education;
- Political discourses about multilingualism;
- Languages, refugees and migration;
- European and global perspectives on citizenship;
- European Identity;
- Intercultural Citizenship;
- Intercultural Education;
- Integration of Citizenship Education in a variety of subjects;
- Tools for developing active citizenship;

- Case studies that illustrate how Citizenship/Intercultural/Multilingual Education takes place.

If you are interested in contributing an article, we are accepting submissions of 2,500-6,000 words inclusive of citations (Times New Roman 12) in English, French or Spanish. Submitted papers will go through the process of blind peer-review. You can find more information regarding submission guidelines on the journal website:
